Company Profile

The History of Miyano

In 1929, Miyano was founded in Kameido, Tokyo as a manufacturer of precision industrial files. In 1941, we moved to Sakaki in Nagano Prefecture. After World War II, Miyano started manufacturing the spark wheels for cigarette lighters. In order to increase productivity, we developed the model AL-S25 cam-operated automatics, initially for internal use and then to sell as the high demand was recognized. This machine is said to be Japan's first cam-operated automatics developed after the war. It became the first step for Miyano to becoming a leading manufacturer of automatics and NC lathes and other machine tools for automated machining.
